

AYA Secondary PBIS matrix

What is PBIS?

PBIS refers to Positive Behavioral Interventions and Support, which encompasses “a range of research-based strategies used to increase quality of life and decrease problem behavior by teaching new skills and making changes in a person's environment” (APBS, 2014). PBIS is a proactive approach that schools can use to improve school safety and promote positive behavior. It's also a way for schools to decide how to respond to a student who does not meet expectations.

When a student follows the school's expectations, then he/she receives a blue ticket as a reward. If a student fails to demonstrate to school's expectations, then he/she receives an infraction as a consequence. These infractions are color coded and they are divided into Yellow Level 1 violations (policy/procedure); Blue Level 2 behavior violations (disruption/horseplay); Pink Level 3 behavior violations and Red Level 4 behavior violations (serious misconduct).

The Behavioral Matrix either reflects or must be complemented by a number of “evidence-based principles” (Kazdin, 2000; Kerr & Nelson, 2002) in order for it to best work.

Among these principles are the following:

1. All students in the school should experience five positive interactions (collectively, from adults, peers, or themselves) for every negative interaction;
2. Students are largely motivated through positive, proactive, and incentive-oriented means;
3. When consequences are necessary, the mildest possible consequence needed to motivate students' appropriate behavior is used;
4. Consequences, not punishments, are used;
5. When consequences are over, students must still practice the previously expected prosocial behavior at least three times under simulated conditions;
6. Staff must differentiate and respond strategically to skill-deficit versus performance-deficit students; and

7. Staff must recognize that incentives and consequences must remain stable because previous inconsistencies may have strengthened some students' inappropriate behavior.

• Level I Yellow

• Level I Yellow (Distracting) Student is not adhering to expectations of behavior: Behavior problems in the classroom that teachers handle with a minimum of interaction or intervention. A Level I Behavior is responded to with a corrective Action:

- √ Teacher visual, non-verbal, or physical prompt
